"Mental Health Law: Best Practices for California Community Colleges"

San Diego City College in Career Tech Center,
16th and C Street - Room V-101

1:00 pm-4:00 pm

Responding to student mental health issues on community college campuses can, all too often, lead to a seeming conflict between students' right to privacy and the campus community's need for safety and enforcement of the college's code of conduct. Mental health service providers and college administrators must negotiate legal constraints and ethical guidelines regarding the needs of the individual and the campus. In addition, many campuses have instituted or are considering some form of "behavioral intervention team", to provide a venue for a multidisciplinary response to distressed and disruptive students. These teams also must operate between the 'right to privacy' and the 'need to know'.

This presentation will provide participants with a clear and practical understanding of the relevant laws governing the sharing of confidential information, current best practices regarding privacy of mental health information for behavioral intervention teams, and discuss considerations for disciplinary actions involving mental health issues.

Presenter Dan Willick, Esq. has over 30 years of healthcare law and college campus Experience. He will be coming to San Diego City College on October 14th to present to direct mental health service providers and selected administrative about how, when and what are best practices for sharing Protected Health Information on your campus.
